TRANSIT CENTER STUDY

COMMENT FORM

June 21, 2006

Thank you for attending! IndyGo appreciates your interest in the proposed downtown transit center and in learning how it will help IndyGo better serve our existing passengers and attract new commuters in the future.

A transit center will serve as a staging area where customers can quickly make transfers between routes. Currently, most transfers take place along a one-mile loop between West, Maryland, Delaware and Ohio streets that adds 10 to 20 minutes per trip for many existing routes. The proposed Transit Center will save time for IndyGo commuters, make Downtown transit commuting more efficient, and reduce traffic congestion along downtown's major travel corridors. The transit center will offer protection from inclement weather conditions, and provide convenient facilities where customers can obtain system information and purchase transit fare media.

We welcome your comments. We hope this discussion forum provided ample opportunity for you to voice your insights and ideas. If you have additional thoughts you would like us to consider, please let us know.
